The Most Regretful First Day

On Tod the toad's first day of school at Amphibian High, he glanced around for someone to become friends with. Him and his family had just migrated from sunny California to humid Florida. The weather in Florida was much warmer so he had to jump into the pond as often as he could to stay refreshed. When Tod walked onto the unfamiliar playground, he noticed there were no toads, only frogs. He wasn't sure if they would accept him.

Tod walked up to a frog who looked about his age. The frog's friends were standing by its side.

"Hi, I'm Tod. What's your name?" he asked in a friendly voice. The frogs only gave him strange looks.

"I'm sorry, I have all the friends I need," he said "Oh, and I'm Rob, the coolest frog you will ever talk to." Tod frowned and sadly hopped away. The school bell rang and Tod walked into Room 401. Yet again, all of his classmates were frogs. Then he noticed something else. Rob was sitting in a corner all alone. His friends had abandoned him, however, Tod only chuckled and sat at his to small of a desk. All of the frogs that had been Rob's friends came hopping toward Tod. They sincerely apologized and became his friend.Then they told him that Rob was a real jerk and they never should have been friends with him. When Rob noticed where his friends were, he too hopped over to Tod. Although, when he apologized, Tod automatically rejected it.

The recess bell rang and the class rushed out of the school to the pond. Then all of a sudden a large, and devilish dog swooped up both Tod and Rob, swallowing them whole. While they were both in the stomach, Rob and Tod realized they should have just been friends from the beginning.